

CONTRIBUTORS

ELIZABETH MOSBY ADLER is a doctoral student in Folklore and American Studies at Indiana University. She received her M. A. in Museum Studies from the Cooperstown Graduate Programs.

THOMAS A. ADLER teaches folklore at the University of Kentucky. He received his Ph. D. in Folklore at Indiana University, and got his M. A. in American Folk Culture at the Cooperstown Graduate Programs.

SIMON J. BRONNER is a doctoral student in Folklore and American Studies at Indiana University. He received his M. A. in American Folk Culture from the Cooperstown Graduate Programs. He is currently editor of Folklore Forum.

WILHELM F. H. NICOLAISEN teaches folklore at the State University of New York at Binghamton. He has served as president of the American Name Society and the New York Folklore Society. His book, Scottish Place Names is a past winner of the Chicago Folklore Prize.

STEPHEN P. POYSER is a doctoral student in Folklore at Indiana University. He received his M. A. from the folklore program at Western Kentucky University.

GARY STANTON is a doctoral student in Folklore at Indiana University. He has worked as a fieldworker for a project of the American Folklife Center, and served as an architectural surveyor for Monroe County, Indiana.

DELL UPTON is president of the Virginia Folklore Society and recently completed his Ph.D. dissertation on early vernacular architecture of southeastern Virginia for the American Civilization Program at Brown University.

GÖSTA VON SCHOULTZ is director of the Värmlands Museum in Karlstad, Sweden.